

Primary Survey Starter

Scenario Overview:

This scenario is a quick and simple one to get people warmed up at the beginning of a scenarios session that tests people on their very basic primary survey for an unresponsive patient with no obvious/apparent reason for them to be unresponsive. The first aiders will arrive to find the patient lying face down, unresponsive.

Difficulty:

First Aider Easy

How the scenario should progress:

The patient will stay unresponsive throughout.

Actor Tips:

Do not respond at all throughout.

Patient 1:

Name: Unknown Age: whatever age the actor is Sex: Male

Medication:

Unknown

Allergies:

Unknown

Past medical/family/social history:

Unknown

Findings on examination:

There is no blood around the patient and no obvious mechanism (although whatever is around the patient might start making them think it through and wonder). On a top-to-toe survey, no obvious injuries will be found. All observations will be as found on the patient-actor. Patient is breathing.

Possible treatment from first aiders:

Good, quick primary survey. Head to toe examination. Recovery position.
